AMF ROADMASTER sets a hot pace in the "Little 500" Bike Race!

The annual "Little 500" Bicycle Race gets under way at Indiana University Memorial Stadium. Wilbur Shaw, racing car immortal, leads 33 AMF Roadmasters around the Stadium track and across the race starting line in official Ford pace car.

Off to a fast start, University of Indiana bike racers round a turn in the grueling 50-mile race—which adds up to 200-laps. Thirty-three 4-man teams are riding special balloon-tire AMF Roadmasters with racing handle bars and saddles, and no fenders.

Changing riders provides action-packed seconds of acrobatics! The incoming rider drops off saddle—keeping a grip on it—then pushes bike ahead to his relief rider, who grasps handle bar and makes a flying leap onto the saddle!

The winner!—flagged by Indianapolis Motor Speedway Starter, Seth Klein. Each member of the winning team averaged better than 20 miles per hour! Over 12,000 spectators cheered the "Greatest Collegiate Bicycle Race In The World"!

You can set your own hot pace on AMF Roadmaster's new "souped-up" 1954 Luxury Liner! It's got longer, lower lines ... special speed features ... just like today's new sports cars! See it, get checked out on it today. At your AMF Roadmaster Dealer's.

'FOR DEBT OR FOR WORST'

WHAT A PAIN IN THE NECK THAT JUGHEAD IS, PLEADING POVERTY AGAIN!

HE'S ALWAYS BROKE! NEVER HAS A PENNY TO HIS NAME! BROKE! BROKE! BROKE! THAT'S ALL YOU HEAR FROM HIM!

I WISH HE'D LEARN TO HOLD ON TO HIS MONEY!

DID HE TRY TO BORROW FROM YOU AGAIN?

NO!

THEN WHAT ARE YOU SO SORE ABOUT!

I CAN'T BORROW FROM HIM!

"JET-REPELLED!"

POP TATE was worried. In fact—very worried. For three afternoons in a row Jughead had failed to put in an appearance at the Choklit Shop, and Jughead never missed his afternoon visit to his favorite eatery. He always stopped in and filled up on hamburgers to carry him through the long hours until dinner. Eight big burgers could just about suffice until the evening meal—provided, of course, they were washed down with three or four ice cream sodas.

When Archie came in, Pop hurried over and explained the reasons for his concern. Archie, like Pop, was quite puzzled.

"Jughead's been in school every day, but he disappears right after the dismissal bell," he mused. "Perhaps I'd better amble over to his house, and do a little private-eyeing."

As Archie approached Jughead's house he heard sounds of furious activity coming from the garage and headed in that direction. He crept toward the open door and started to peep inside. Suddenly there was a loud noise and something resembling a bolt of lightning shot past Archie's nose. With a howl of terror he dived into a nearby blueberry bush, as Jughead came running from the garage.

"Gee, I'm awful sorry, Arch," Jughead panted. "One of my rockets got loose!"

"One of your rockets?" yelped Archie. "What are you building in there—a space ship?"

Jughead laughed. "Don't be silly. I'm making a hot-rod bicycle!"

Archie shook his head in despair. "I always knew you were nuts, Juggie," he said, "but not this nuts."

"Whaddya mean? It's a terrific idea. They have hot-rod cars, don't they—so why not hot-rod bikes? Once I patent this gadget, I'll make a million."

Jughead dragged Archie into the garage and showed him the invention.

Fundamentally, it was an ordinary two-wheeled bicycle. Jughead had rigged up a bank of Fourth-of-July rockets on each side of the rear wheel. An electric mechanism to touch these off led from a wire attached to the handle-bars.

"As soon as I get up speed with the pedals," Jughead explained, "I set off my rockets . . . and VOOOOOM!"

"I still think you're nuts," rasped Archie, "and a month's free hamburgers and sodas at the Choklit Shop says I'm right!"

"It's a bet, wise guy," Juggie answered. "I'm almost ready for the test run, so stick around and watch."

Jughead put the finishing touches on his machine, tightening a bolt here, adjusting a connection there, and so on. Finally he wheeled the jet-propelled bike outside and announced that he would drive to the Riverdale Bank and back, while Archie followed in Jughead's car and acted as official observer.

Unfortunately, Jughead didn't know that the rockets on which he was depending weren't ordinary Fourth-of-July rockets, but super-charged extra powerful ones, intended for use in an Army Signal Corps project.

Juggie pedaled off down the road, an optimistic smile on his face, while Archie followed alongside in the jalopy. As soon as he had worked up a good rate of speed, Jughead flipped the switch to set off the rockets.

There were two blasts, three loud WHOOOSHes and a terrific VOOOM, and Jughead rocketed down the street, completely out of control.

What happened after that is a matter of debate. According to Archie, all fourteen of Jughead's super-charged rockets went off at once in a beautiful blaze, shooting Jug forward at approximately 275 miles per hour. According to the "Riverdale Gazette," eighteen people called up in hysterics, thinking that the town had been invaded from Mars. According to Mr. Weatherbee it was even worse than that, since one of the rockets broke loose, sailed through his dining room window, and landed right in a plate of soup he was about to enjoy.

As for Jughead, he clung to the handle-bars, unable to stop the runaway bicycle or to jump off and save himself. He zoomed through the bank, the Supermarket, and the lobby of the Riverdale Hotel in rapid succession. Then he turned into Center Street, knocked over a fruit stand, went through a plate glass window and was last seen heading out of town on the main highway.

Archie, alarmed, followed as best he could. About six miles past the outskirts of Riverdale he heard cries for help coming from a nearby ditch. Archie braked to a stop, and dashed toward the sound. Sure enough it was Jughead, waist deep in mud and misery. The bicycle was a complete wreck, but Jughead was miraculously in one piece. Archie hauled him out of the ditch, dumped him in the car, and headed back to town.

"I think my invention needs a little ironing out," Jughead croaked.

"So do you," Archie chuckled, "and by the way—don't forget that I won our bet!"

Jughead sighed. His inventing days were over, but he still wasn't free to visit the Choklit Shop. With Archie to pay off in hamburgers and sodas, one appetite was all he could afford!
